After years of extensive study, most historians believe that the Valley of the Kings was used as a royal burial ground from approximately 1539 to 1075 B.C.—a period of almost 500 years. The first tomb to be carved here was that of the pharaoh Thutmose I, while the last royal tomb is thought to be that of Ramesses XI. It is uncertain why Thutmose I chose the valley as the site of his new necropolis.
