This book has been written specifically for students studying for the new Cambridge O-Level Agriculture examination but is suitable for students following the syllabuses of the other examining boards in Central and South Africa.

Much attention in late-developing countries is given to providing access to studies which allow school leavers to enter science and technology-related careers. This book reviews research related to the crucial dimension of epistemological access to the disciplines of import, which students need as much as institutional access in order to improve their chances of success. A significant feature of this collection's research studies is that their empirical bases are highly localised, covering areas such as research methods, access, curriculum, instruction and assessment, and the relevance of science and mathematics education in Zimbabwe, Uganda, Swaziland, South Africa, Namibia, Malawi, Ghana and Lesotho. It is the outcome of a doctoral research capacity-development project, the Graduate Studies in Science, Mathematics and Technology Education (GRASSMATE).

A dissertation on the potentials of agroforestry. A special chapter is dedicated to agricultural education. It describes a detailed agroforestry training programme, its concepts, objectives and content
